

She's just trying to help the women she counsels! but now, someone wants to end her life Dr. Linda Walker is a forty-two year old African American Marriage and Family therapist. Her husband of 17 years and college sweetheart is Ron, who teaches math at a local high school. Linda has just started her own practice and takes a no-nonsense approach to helping her clients. While she endeavors to remain professional at all times, she comes from the mean streets of Los Angeles California: She's bold. She's real. Don't test her! Although she counsels couples and families, her main focus is to help women with self-esteem issues. She starts a quarterly group, "Woman to Woman" - teaching women how to live empowered lives and to be in healthy relationships. Kimberly, the sister of one of Linda's college friends, decides to attend a "Woman to Woman" session with her sister. While Kimberly has been with her husband Michael since high school, she paints a picture of her marriage that no one saw coming. Then there's Erica - a fourteen year old with the body of a grown woman - and a student in Ron's math class. After breaking in and vandalizing the school with her friends, Linda agrees to counsel her as part of her probation. Behind Erica's bad attitude, there may be a family secret that she's hiding. BROKEN is an inside look at how Dr. Linda's life intertwines with the women she's trying to help. Follow the Linda series as she empowers women to love and respect themselves, and encourages them to lift each other up. The goal is for each woman to be in a healthy loving relationship.
