

In 965 AD, one man born to be king is driven to the depths of despair because of two women. One an alluring pagan queen, and the mother of his children, the other a devout Christian princess from a neighboring kingdom. Torn between love and duty, with volatile forces working against him, the king must contend with feuding tribal chiefs, a scheming pagan priest, and an emperor. Alliances must be made, but who can be trusted in this epic tale of honor and betrayal, and the birth of a Christian nation?
