

The narrative for Thunder Across The Mountain is based on the life of Sam Johnson, a former army ranger who is now serving with the Chicago Police Department in drug enforcement as he patrols with his partner, Jake Kilgore. Sam, after having been wounded in action while serving in the military, is seriously considering leaving and withdrawing to a remote area away from the clutches of a corrupt city and society. After another wound from a drug bust goes bad, Sam resigns and heads for the Blue Ridge Mountains where he locates and buys his isolated mountain valley. From this point, this becomes a fast paced, action filled story as Sam discovers he has a neighbor who also resides in the valley named Rachel Evans, a thirty eight year old widowed mountain woman. What they both soon discover is the huge money laundering operation just one mountain away---a vicious criminal group that does not want Sam Johnson or Rachel Evans in that valley and who proceeds to remove both of them by force and leave no witnesses. This novel is full of fast action twists and danger as Sam and Rachel along with the local Sheriff take on the Crime Syndicate as well as the Federal Government.
